The Australian National University (ANU) was specifically established in 1946, under Commonwealth legislation, “to encourage and provide facilities for graduate research and study both generally and in relation to subjects of national importance to Australia”. ANU was one of the first Australian universities to award the degree of Doctor of Philosophy and has earned an international reputation for continued excellence in research and in the training of graduate coursework students.

ANU is a unique university, both within the Australian system and internationally, well-positioned to maintain its role as a major centre for graduate teaching in the natural, physical and social sciences and the humanities.

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

The basic admission qualification for graduate courses is completion of a recognised Bachelor degree. Admission requirements vary depending on the course you are interested in. Any special requirements are listed in the separate Table of courses or in the Graduate Coursework Student Prospectus at http://studyat.anu.edu.au/graduate\_coursework.html.

Special consideration

ANU College of Arts and Social Sciences: Graduates whose academic record does not meet normal admission requirements may apply for special consideration. In addition to submitting an application to UAC, such applicants should also write directly to the Senior Coursework Officer, ANU College of Arts and Social Sciences, The Australian National University, Canberra ACT 0200, seeking special consideration. When writing, quote your UAC application number (if known).

ANU College of Asia and the Pacific, Strategic and Defence Studies Centre: If your academic qualifications alone do not meet the admission requirements and admission is being sought on the basis of a combination of academic qualification and relevant work experience, you need to send a supporting statement to: The Program Administrator, Graduate Studies in Strategy & Defence, ANU College of Asia and the Pacific, Hedley Bull Centre (#130), The Australian National University, Canberra ACT 0200. When writing, quote your UAC application number (if known). Refer to Table A on page 27 for details about supporting documentation required for this program.

ANU College of Asia and the Pacific, Master of Natural Hazards: If your academic qualifications alone do not meet the admission requirements and admission is being sought on the basis of a combination of academic qualification and relevant work experience, you need to send a supporting statement to: The Program Administrator, RMAP, Crawford School of Economics & Government, ANU College of Asia and the Pacific, Hedley Bull Centre (#130), The Australian National University, Canberra ACT 0200. When writing, quote your UAC application number (if known). Refer to Table A on page 27 for details about supporting documentation required for this program.

Overseas qualifications and English proficiency

ANU COLLEGE OF LAW
Juris Doctor	The ANU Juris Doctor (JD) is a graduate-entry law degree that, like the undergraduate LLB, satisfies the academic requirement for admission to legal practice in Australia. Applicants for the ANU JD must therefore already hold an undergraduate degree in another discipline from a recognised institution. Details about the ANU JD admission process and entry requirements may be found at http://law.anu.edu.au/Postgraduate/Juris_Doctor.asp . In essence, the primary selection criterion is academic merit, with primary weighting on previous tertiary results. However, other factors may be taken into account, including wider achievements, work experience, and career aspirations. A number of Commonwealth-supported places (CSP) are available for the ANU JD, and those places will be allocated to the most highly qualified applicants, ranked according to the selection criteria noted above. If there is sufficient demand beyond the number of available CSP, and if applicants are of sufficient academic merit, fee-paying places may be made available. Visit the ANU College of Law website for further information. Note to all applicants: Given the broad selection criteria, applicants are required to submit a personal statement of a maximum of 600 words, setting out any factors that they believe will enhance their application. Provide your statement as a PDF file using UAC's Upload facility immediately after you apply through UAC. For information about this Upload facility visit www.uac.edu.au/postgraduate/faq/upload.shtml .
